Hi, Intrepid Kerbonauts!

This is the Development Thread for my own first 100% from Scratch Add'On:

Score!, a Utility to automate computing Scores for Challenges

There's a Proof of Concept in: https://github.com/net-lisias- ksp/Score/releases, theoretically compatible with every KSP version since 1.2.2 - but further testings are still on the works. Please use this stunt on Disposable Instalments. Check the Install instructions for Dependencies (none included).

I guarantee only that this thing worked on my Machine. Once. 🤮

Source Code: https://github.com/net-lisias-ksp/Score

Double Licensed on GPL-2.0 and SKL-1.0 at user discretion.

Currently only Fastest Juno Powered Airplane Challenge is implemented, and even that is not final - the whole shebang is intended to improve.

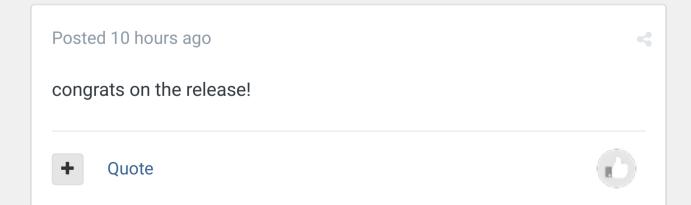

(And yeah, the aircraft depicted doesn't qualify, but hey, this is my development KSP instalment, my challenge crafts are on another one!)

I always have considered someone copying an idea from you the completely misunderstanding what OrX is about.... which to be honest, I am still not sure of.

This one seems to be meant to just tally up a 'score' according to some arbitrarily chosen formula to facilitate scoring of a craft for challenges. Yours seems to ... create and share challenge files? I don't know what a challenge file is though.

The whole concept of a mod to do forum challenges, whether using a arbitrary formula or not, comes from what I have already made ... I even have pretty much the exact same thing in OrX Kontinuum as what is in Scores

So yeah, flattered is the word I guess 🥵

Nope. You are wrong, and I expect you to retract yourself.

And it's not, I just checked the code. It's kinda of simplified, ultraspecialized (Racings et all) Mission Builder clone. At least, I didn't found any code for arbitrary formulas for scoring.

I think the guy panicked too soon fearing a competition that doesn't exists. 🔯
